

Jewellery Quarter History	1836 Key Hill Cemetery is opened in Birmingham 1836	1789 Birmingham and Fazeley Canal opened	1980's An interest in regeneration of the area leads to the creation of the 'Golden Triangle'	1903 Chamberlain Clock is built on the corner of Vyse Street and Waterstone Lane	1820 Gas lights installed in the Jewellery Quarter	1777 Saint Paul's church is opened in the Jewellery Quarter	1850s Jewellery Quarter became the centre of Birmingham's coffin furniture trade	1746 Colmore Estate is sold and developed. This becomes the Jewellery Quarter
World History	1965 Winston Churchill dies	1914 – 1918 WW1	1939 – 1945 WW2	1901 Queen Victoria dies End of the Victorian Era	1948 National Health Society (NHS) is born	1968 – 1998 Troubles in Ireland begin	1837 Queen Victoria comes to the throne. The start of the Victorian Era	1998 Troubles in Ireland end
Newman Brothers' History	1894 Factory on Fleet Street was built	1933 Horace and George (brothers) take over Newman Brothers	1976 Joyce Green became manager and owner of Newman Brothers	1999 Newman Brothers closed	2003 Joyce Green sold Newman Brothers to an organisation to turn it into a museum	2014 Newman Brothers reopened as a museum	1965 Newman Brothers supplies the fittings for the coffin of Sir Winston Churchill	1960s Newman Brothers was one of only three coffin furniture manufacturers left in Birmingham

Instructions:

Cut out each Timeline card and place in the correct place on the timeline.

1 piece of loo roll = 1 decade

10 pieces of loo roll = 1 century